Re: Grammar Electrical

I write by way of introducing the services and support that Auckland Grammar School has received from Grammar Electrical over decades, since the establishment of the company by the Dempsey family in 1948.

Throughout the history of Auckland Grammar School, we have chosen to develop relationships with like-minded organisations who share our values. Accordingly, the School has appreciated the services of Grammar Electrical because of the quality of their workmanship, their diverse skill set, sound working relationships, competitive pricing and the values by which they operate.

In particular, our relationship with the Dempsey family, John, Aaron and Carl has developed throughout the years and this foundation has given us great confidence and belief in them, their services and their good word.

Grammar Electrical continues to listen to our needs, in a large School environment and an ever changing sector with specific compliance requirements. They have accommodated very minor requests through to significant project work. We have also valued their professional advice and their understanding of what is required in an educational environment that caters for 2500 students and 250 staff members.

The electricians and staff from Grammar Electrical have been consistently professional in the manner they communicate with our staff, with parents and our young men. They have worked on campus to provide seamless solutions and helped us avert many potential and sometimes unseen problems that often exist on a campus like ours.

Grammar Electrical have established a trustworthy name in the industry and we have been more than satisfied with consistent pricing, given a volatile market place, and more so with the peace of mind that Grammar Electrical staff are experienced and ready to assist when problems arise.

I am happy to highly recommend the services of Grammar Electrical to like-minded schools. Auckland Grammar School continues to further its working relationship with a company of this standing.
